

FORMER LOCAL CRAFT SINKS

Sch. Florence E. Merchant of New York, formerly owned by Capt. Nels Amoro of this city, sank yesterday about 10 miles off of Race Point, according to information reaching this port.

LOCAL CRAFT GOES AGROUND

Sandwich, November 1.—The auxiliary schooner Amelia M. Pereira of Gloucester went aground in the fog early this morning, about 1.30 o'clock on Peaked Hill Bar. Coast Guard boats succeeded in floating her about 2.15, and the schooner, under the command of its captain, Capt. Perry, proceeded to the fishing grounds.

On the boat at the time, it is understood was Capt. Aubrey White of Nantucket, formerly of this city, and one man whose name is not available.

The craft suddenly sank while en route to this port to haul out on the railways for repairs. The two men were forced to take to the lone dory carried by the craft and row 30 miles to Provincetown where the younger man collapsed, leaving Capt. White to bring the boat into a berth at Matheson's wharf.

Both men were more or less used up from their long row and were drenched to the skin by rain. After having having their clothing dried and given warm drinks they left for their homes in Nantucket.

EVENING SESSION.

The Board of Registrars will hold an evening session at the city clerk's office at City hall, from 7.30 to 9 o'clock, for the purpose of registering voters for the city election.

NO ARRIVALS HERE TODAY

HARBOR BARE OF RECEIPTS EXCEPT GILL NET FARES YESTERDAY.

No arrivals of any kind were reported at any of the wharves this morning, and the only fish received since yesterday was the trips of the gill net fleet, which were fairly good. Practically all of the seining fleet is in port, the netters are tied up awaiting favorable weather, and a few haddockers are waiting for a chance to get out. This morning, so solidly massed was the fleet of fishing craft in inner Harbor Cove that one could walk from the wharf of the Atlantic Supply Company, to the General Seafoods plant over their decks.

Oyster Increase Seen.

Marked improvement in the number of spat clinging to 1,200,000 bushels of oyster shells which have been planted by the state of Maryland in the Chesapeake Bay and its tributaries in the last two years has been reported by Swepson Earle, State Conservation Commissioner.

Mr. Earle said that tests made September 1 were discouraging but that more recently other samples taken out of the bay waters have indicated that shell planting will be effective toward the rehabilitation of oyster production in the state.

He exhibited one sample of two oysters, taken from Tar Bay, inside of Barren Island, which had 157 small cysters growing to its sides. Mr. Earle pointed out that this number full grown, would approximate a half barrel of oysters.

While the shells were planted by the department during the last two summers, it is not expected that any material benefits will result for at least another two years, giving the oysters time to reach sufficient size.

Change in Schedule.

Returning to their winter schedule of sailings between Boston and New York, the Eastern Steamship Lines announce that the strs. New York and Boston will be replaced by the George Washington and Robert E. Lee. The George Washington replaced the Boston on the sailing from Boston Wednesday, and the Robert E. Lee replaced the New York sailing from Boston yesterday. There will be no Sunday sailings.

ALLOTMENT MADE FOR POLLOCK RIP CHANNEL.

The Secretary of War upon the recommendation of the chief of engineers, Major-General Lytle Brown has approved an allotment for Pollock Rip Channel of $15,000. When original allotments were made from the River and Harbor Appropriation Act for 1929 no funds were allotted for the improvement of the Pollock Rip Shoals project, as there was a balance available of $20,156.94 and it was not known whether funds in excess of this balance would be required.

THREE TRIPS IN ONE WEEK

For the third time this week, the Boston fishing sch. Wanderer, formerly the palatial yacht of the same name, arrived at the Fish Pier yesterday from the South Channel grounds. Capt. Frank Watts has been favored with good weather and an abundance of fish, and in his three visits has landed 170,000 pounds of mixed groundfish, a very creditable showing for the time involved. The vessel has fared well financially also. Roughly, for the three catches she has stocked $8500, and each member of the crew stands to receive as a share approximately $200.

TRAWLER GROUNDS IN BOSTON HARBOR

While outward bound early yesterday in fog, the steam trawler Boston College, Capt. Magnusson, touched on the southeast end of Gallops island, Boston lower harbor, but floated unassisted and proceeded, apparently undamaged.

Sailed for Newfoundland.

Schs. Mary F. Curtis, Capt. David Keating, and sch. Elsie, Capt. Daniel MacCulish, sailed this morning for Newfoundland to load herring.

VESSEL'S DECKHOUSE

A wireless message received yesterday by C. H. Harvey, agent of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, at Halifax, said the partly submerged deckhouse of a schooner had been reported in latitude 43.45 north, longitude 57.35 west, which was about 150 miles southeast of Sable Island. The deckhouse was painted white and was attached to part of a deck.

Her Maiden Trip.

Yesterday's arrivals at the Boston Fish Pier included the new auxiliary dragger Geraldine and Phyllis, owned by A. L. Parker of the General Seafoods Company, completing her initial trip. The vessel fished on Georges, securing a fare of 75,000 pounds, a most auspicious beginning.

The new craft, built at Essex, registers 113 tons gross, 102 feet long and fitted with a 230-horsepower engine, is commanded by Capt. Colin Dory, formerly of the sch. Irene and Mabel.
